Despite profit miss, 1Q24 should be the lowest quarter

Highlights

- Excluding small forex and derivatives gains, SJWD registered a core profit of THB160m in 1Q24 (-40% q-q, -31% y-y), lower than our estimate by 33% and the Bloomberg consensus by 14%.
- The lower-than-expected profit was largely due to a lower-than-estimated share of profit from associates. The equity income came in at THB41m, compared with our estimate of THB77m. This was mainly due to the THB5m loss contribution from Vietnam-based JV Transimex Corp (TMS VN – SJWD holds 23.47%), which reclassified its profit from asset sales in 2023 in this quarter.
- Stripping out the one-time accounting adjustment, TMS's operation had a core profit of cTHB18m in 1Q24, in line with SJWD's guidance.
- Main operations from SJWD in 1Q24 were largely in line with our expectation. The company's EBITDA decreased 37.3% q-q, mainly from the automotive yard management and cold chain units. Chinese New Year temporarily affected the cold storage demand for poultry products.
- Thailand's passenger car sales decreased 9.9% q-q and 15.3% y-y in 1Q24. Consumers delayed purchase decisions as they waited for promotions at the Motor Show in late March 2024. The revenue from SJWD's automotive unit fell 19.1% q-q from the record sales in 4Q23, but still grew 22.5% y-y.
- The transportation unit, however, improved faster than expected in 1Q24, with revenue increasing 7.3% q-q and 27.9% y-y and its gross margin expanding 200 bps to 8.5%. This was in line with the recovery in cement and construction materials demand.

Outlook

- We believe 1Q24 earnings should be the lowest of 2024. Despite 2Q normally being the low season of the auto and other business due to fewer working days, this year could be different.
- Share of profits should improve from the low base in 1Q24. SJWD's cold storage has seen high demand from frozen tuna and chilled medicine, and ANI and SWIFT will contribute full-quarter shares of profit from 2Q24 onwards. The company also has a potential gain from asset sales to REIT in 3Q24.
- Although the 1Q24 core profit accounts for 14% of our full-year forecast, we maintain our projection and BUY call.

The methodology considers the principle of financial materiality including information that significantly helps explain future risk-adjusted performance. Materiality is applied by over-weighting features with higher materiality and rebalancing these weights on a rolling quarterly basis.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | The total ESG score is calculated as a weighted sum of the features scores using materiality-based weights. The score is based on Bloomberg's view of ESG financial materiality. The score is a weighted generalized mean (power mean) of Pillar Scores, where the weights are determined by the pillar priority ranking. Values range from 0 to 10; 10 is the best.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                               |                |                                                                                   |           |             |      |       |          |             |     |  |            |             |                 |                                                                                                                               |           |             |  |  |          |             |  |  |            |             |                 |                                                                                             |  |

RECOMMENDATION STRUCTURE

Stock ratings

Stock ratings are based on absolute upside or downside, which we define as  $(\text{target price}^* - \text{current price}) / \text{current price}$ .

BUY (B). The upside is 10% or more.

HOLD (H). The upside or downside is less than 10%.

REDUCE (R). The downside is 10% or more.

Unless otherwise specified, these recommendations are set with a 12-month horizon. Thus, it is possible that future price volatility may cause a temporary mismatch between upside/downside for a stock based on market price and the formal recommendation.

* In most cases, the target price will equal the analyst's assessment of the current fair value of the stock. However, if the analyst doesn't think the market will reassess the stock over the specified time horizon due to a lack of events or catalysts, then the target price may differ from fair value. In most cases, therefore, our recommendation is an assessment of the mismatch between current market price and our assessment of current fair value.
