Investment thesis

- Despite a high dividend payout ratio of 80% for 2025-27E and ROE up to 9.9%, we are concerned about SCB's asset quality with a higher NPL ratio and higher NPL formation rate in 4Q24. With this overhang issue, we expect SCB's credit cost for 2025 to be 164bp vs SCB's target of 150-170bp and 176bp in 2024.
- Retail loans such as housing, auto HP, unsecured loans and title loans contribute around 50% of SCB's total loans, which is a considerably high proportion compared to peers. However, the recently lower household debt-to-GDP ratio or deleveraging progress has mainly come from low nominal GDP growth. This will push more difficulties to private consumption, weakening domestic demand and reducing retail loan growth further, we believe.

Company profile

Siam Commercial Bank or SCB was the first commercial bank in Thailand, established in 1906. After reorganization from SCB bank to SCBX in 2021, SCBX has positioned itself as a prominent financial technology leader in the ASEAN region and has transitioned beyond traditional banking to become a diversified tech-driven conglomerate.

Catalysts

- Higher loan demand for retail and corporate loans.
- Lower-than-expected impact from interest rate cuts.
- A lower credit cost from asset quality improvement.
- Controllable OPEX, even for new investment projects.
- A better-than-expected non-NII from wealth management, bancassurance, and credit card business.

Risks to our call

Downside risks to our GGM-based TP are 1) prolonged economic sluggishness affecting loan growth and asset quality; and 2) the impact of new regulations from the Bank of Thailand. Upside risks comprise 1) the faster-than-expected recovery of EA operations and financial stability; and 2) a reduction in Thai household debt.

Asset quality remains uncertain; stay for high dividend for a while

Maintain HOLD with a new TP of THB130

Despite a high dividend payout ratio of 80% for 2025-26E, we are concerned about SCB's asset quality with a higher NPL ratio and higher NPL formation rate in 4Q24. With this overhang issue, we believe that SCB has limited room to lower its credit cost y-y in 2025. We conservatively expect SCB's credit cost for 2025 to be 164bp vs SCB's target of 150-170bp and 176bp in 2024. Sensitivity-wise, for every 10bp increase in credit cost, SCB's net profit in 2025E would be negatively impacted by 5.2%, all else being equal.

Nonetheless, we have raised our 2025-26 forecast by 6-7% on the back of 1) lower loan loss provisions to 164bp from 190bp; and 2) lower OPEX and better profitability after the divestment of 'Purple Venture' or the Robinhood application, which generated a loss of around THB2b per year. We conservatively project SCB's loan growth to be around 1-2% for 2025-26 on the back of moderate conditions among retail loans (mortgages, auto hire-purchase, and unsecured loans).

We expect SCB's cost-to-income ratio to be around 42% in 2025-26, which is at SCB's lower bound target of 42-44%. Nonetheless, the risk of OPEX overrun exists, in our view, as SCB plans to establish a virtual bank in Thailand (partnered with KakaoBank Korea and WeBank China), is finalizing its Home Credit Vietnam (HCVN) acquisition, and investing in technologies and data transformation. Sensitivity-wise, for every 1ppt increase in the cost-to-income ratio, SCB's net profit in 2025E would be negatively impacted by 3.7%, all else being equal.

As a result, we expect SCB to post net profit growth of around 4-5% y-y for 2025-26, which is in line with the industry's projected net profit growth during the same period. After our earnings revisions, we raise our GGM-based 2025 TP to THB130 (from THB112 previously), which implies 0.88x 2025E P/BV (COE of 10.0%, ROE of 9.0%).

SCB is now trading at 0.9x 2025E P/BV vs our ROE projection of 9.4-9.5% in 2025-26. Nonetheless, with the downside risks of deteriorating asset quality, higher credit cost, OPEX overrun, and the risk of a lower NIM if there is a further policy interest rate cut in 2025, we maintain our HOLD call for SCB.

We forecast SCB's dividend payout ratio to be at 80% for 2025-26, which is one of the highest payout ratios among Thai banks. At the current price, SCB now offers an 8.4% 2H24 dividend yield with the XD date on 16 April 2025. We think it would be fair for investors to stay with SCB for the high dividend yield at this moment and wait until the XD date on 16 April.

We maintain our HOLD rating for SCB with a new GGM-based 2025 TP of THB130.

High proportion of retail loans; more prudent new lending

As of 4Q24 (see exhibit above), retail loans such as housing and auto HP, plus Gen 2 business like unsecured loans and title loans contributed around 50% of SCB's total loans, which is a considerably high proportion compared to peers.

However, SCB EIC (Economic Intelligence Center) has raised concerns over the persistently high household debt in Thailand (89% to GDP as of 4Q24, down from 92% in 2023) (source: Bank of Thailand (BOT)). SCB EIC sees the recently lower household debt-to-GDP ratio or deleveraging progress as mainly coming from low nominal GDP growth and the contraction of the household debt balance. By these factors, this could be considered as an 'unhealthy' deleveraging progress, we believe, as it implies low economic growth and low liquidity among households, which will push more difficulties to private consumption and weaken domestic demand further.

With the abovementioned view, SCB has targeted loan growth of only 1-3% in 2025 (vs FSSIA's estimates of 1%) to reflect the conservative stance on the economic outlook, especially on the retail loan segment. In addition, with a higher NPL ratio and higher NPL formation rate q-q in 4Q24, we believe this is another reason for SCB's conservative loan growth target.

The conservative stance on retail loans is also in line with the results from BOT's credit conditions survey in Jan-25. For retail and household debt, there is demand for loans but all financial institutions are continuing to tighten credit standards. This is due to concerns over the economic outlook with a subdued GDP growth trajectory, risk of collateral value, and the deteriorating debt serviceability problem, not only for the low-income group (THB10-30K per month) but also the middle-income group (30-50K per month) (source: SCB EIC).

NIM impact from one policy interest rate cut has been factored in

Our SCB earnings forecast is based on one policy interest rate cut in 2025E to 2.0%. As SCB has a mortgage proportion at 32% of total loans and a corporate loan proportion at 35% of total loans, which are both quoted as floating interest rate, the negative impact from the rate cut on SCB is inevitable, we believe. We expect SCB's NIM to decline to 3.85% in 2025 from 3.97% in 2024.

The negative impact of a lower interest rate for SCB, in our view, could be mitigated by 1) a high proportion of CASA at 78% of total deposits; and 2) expansion to high-yield loan segments like CardX (credit card, unsecured loans) and AutoX (auto title loans).

In the case of a further policy interest rate cut by 25bp from our base case, our sensitivity analysis suggests that the negative impact on SCB's NIM would be around 5.5bp, with a net profit impact of 3.9% for 2025E.

Not a promising asset quality outlook

In 4Q24, SCB was the only bank under our coverage that recorded a higher NPL formation rate vs peers' stable or lower-trending NPL formation rate. This could be a concerning sign for SCB's asset quality outlook in 2025, in our view, coupled with the 'unhealthy' household debt deleveraging progress.

Exhibit 12: SCB's NPL formation – the only bank that had a rising trend in 4Q24

Sources: SCB, FSSIA compilation

In detail, according to SCB's quarterly data (see figure below), all segments reported a higher NPL ratio q-q in 4Q24, including corporate, SME and retail loans (mortgage, auto HP). Our key concerns are corporate loans and mortgages, which are collateralized loans. The default of such collateralized loans would imply significant weakness in debt serviceability and prolonged NPLs in the balance sheet, as it requires a long process of litigation and legal execution for cash collection or debt settlement. This is not positive for SCB, we believe.

Exhibit 13: SCB's NPL and NPL formation rate by segment

The highlights indicate increases in the ratios over the given periods. Sources: SCB, FSSIA compilation

In addition, we saw rising NPL formation rates q-q for SCB in 4Q24 from all segments (corporate, SME, retail mortgage). This affirms our concern over SCB's asset quality over the next 1-2 years.

On the positive side, SCB has cleaned up the unsecured NPLs (credit card and personal loans) in its subsidiary Cardx (under Gen 2 business). The results have been reflected via 1) a lower NPL ratio to 4.9% in Dec-24 from 5.6% in Dec-23; and 2) a lower credit cost to 900bp in 2024 vs 1035bp in 2023. Note that peers' average credit cost for credit card and personal loans is around 800bp +/-.

Exhibit 14: Rising NPL ratio but lower credit cost for SCB in 4Q24

Sources: SCB, FSSIA compilation

The successful NPL cleanup at CardX (4.2% of SCB's total loans) will support a lower credit cost trend in 2025E, we believe. Nonetheless, the concern about corporate loans and mortgage loans for SCB (in terms of both NPL ratio and NPL formation rate) remains, in our view.

We conservatively expect SCB's credit cost for 2025 to be 164bp vs SCB's target of 150-170bp and 176bp in 2024. Sensitivity-wise, for every 10bp increase in credit cost, SCB's net profit in 2025E would be negatively impacted by 5.2%, all else being equal.

Meanwhile, we expect the NPL ratio for SCB to be around 4.1% over 2025-27, and the NPL coverage ratio to be around 156-166% over the same period, which is roughly in line with the industry average.

Already high dividend payout ratio at 80%

For its 2024 financial performance, SCB has announced a high dividend payout ratio of 80%; which is one of the highest levels among Thai banks.

We expect SCB to maintain the 80% payout ratio for 2025-27, supported by a high CET1 ratio of c18% and a CAR ratio of c19% over the same period, which are much higher than SCB's targets of 16% for CET and 18% for CAR. The high dividend payout ratio for SCB since 2023 is aiming to enhance better capital management and ROE generation. On the positive side, the high dividend payout ratio will benefit SCB's shareholders.

SCB aims for double-digit ROE in the medium term (around 2026-28E). Based on our projection, SCB's ROE could be up to 9.9% in 2027, even though we have factored in an 80% dividend payout ratio. In our view, SCB has managed its capital base well. However, raising dividend payouts further may not be a good option, in our view, as it will create regulatory risk, as the BOT allows up to a 100% dividend payout ratio with internal monitoring for 90% beyond.

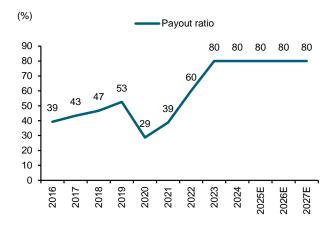

Thus, to enhance ROE to 10%, we believe SCB has to enhance income and profitability from all Gen1 (core banking business mainly from private wealth management which is an asset-lite business) and Gen2 business (more profitability from CardX and AutoX after heavy investment and balance sheet cleanup in the past three years) and break even from Gen3 (digital assets and platforms vs loss of THB3b in 2024).

RECOMMENDATION STRUCTURE

Stock ratings

Stock ratings are based on absolute upside or downside, which we define as (target price* - current price) / current price.

BUY (B). The upside is 10% or more.

HOLD (H). The upside or downside is less than 10%.

REDUCE (R). The downside is 10% or more.

Unless otherwise specified, these recommendations are set with a 12-month horizon. Thus, it is possible that future price volatility may cause a temporary mismatch between upside/downside for a stock based on market price and the formal recommendation.

* In most cases, the target price will equal the analyst's assessment of the current fair value of the stock. However, if the analyst doesn't think the market will reassess the stock over the specified time horizon due to a lack of events or catalysts, then the target price may differ from fair value. In most cases, therefore, our recommendation is an assessment of the mismatch between current market price and our assessment of current fair value.
